IN THE HUDDLE

By Steve Snapp

Missouri and Ohio State began their football rivalry back in 1939. Since that initial meeting, the two schools have met eight more times with all nine games contested here in Ohio Stadium.

The results have been very satisfying from the Buckeyes' viewpoint. Ohio State has a commanding 8-0-1 lead over the Tigers, including a 35-34 win in 1949, the last meeting between the two teams until today's get together.

But don't think for a moment that Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes is taking the Tigers lightly. Not after Coach Al Onofrio's team opened its season with an electrifying 46-25 over Southern California in Los Angeles. Making the Tigers even more dangerous is last week's upset loss to Illinois, a setback that will have Mizzou trying twice as hard against the Buckeyes.

At the control of the Mizzou offense is rangy Steve Pisarkiewicz, a 6-3, 200 pound quarterback who is in the process of rewriting the Tigers' records book. Pisarkiewicz was injured in last week's Illinois game and his status is doubtful for today's contest. But if the big signal caller is healthy, OSU fans will have a chance to see one of the top quarterbacks in college football in action.

The Missouri running game centers around tailback Curtis Brown and fullback Rich Dansill, two explosive powerhouse runners who make the Tiger offense a versatile and well balanced unit. Brown, a senior who picked up 636 yards last year in reserve is off to another fine start in 1976 with 162 yards and three touchdowns in two games.

Woody has nothing but the utmost respect for the Tigers.

"Missouri is a fine football team with a lot of weapons and an explosive attack," he declared earlier in the week. "We have studied their films and they do an excellent job of tying their running and passing attacks together."

While Missouri has split its first two starts, the Buckeyes have jumped off to a 2-0 record on the strength of a 49-21 win over Michigan State two weeks ago and last week's 12-7 squeaker over Penn State in University Park.

Woody is pleased but not entirely satisfied with his team's progress up to this point.

"We still have room for improvement," he notes. "We have to show that we can pass on offense and that our defense can stop other teams from passing. If we can do those two things, we can become a pretty good football team."

One of the pleasant surprises of the young season has been the performance of Jeff Logan at tailback. Jeff has had to backup All-American Archie Griffin the past two years, but he's a starter now and in his first two games has rushed for 272 yards and two touchdowns and has a fancy 8.5 average per carry.

"There was never any doubt that Jeff would be a fine football player," says Hayes. "He is a hard worker, learns quickly, seldom has a bad practice and makes very few mistakes. Combine those qualities with his running ability and you've got a player."

Not a surprise is the fine play of tackles Nick Buonamici and Eddie Beamon, who along with linebacker Ed Thompson, have collected 14 tackles thus far to lead the Buckeyes in that category.

LINEMAN OF THE WEEK

JIMMY MOORE — TIGHT END — Didn't catch a pass last week against Penn State, but was instrumental in helping the Buckeyes to a 12-7 victory with his consistently fine blocking. Received five Buckeye leaves for his performance in which he graded out above 70 percent on the day. A sophomore from Tempe, Ariz. where he was all-state both in football and basketball, Moore packs 258 pounds on his 6-5 frame and is a sure handed receiver with surprisingly good speed. A business administration major, Jimmy is one of the top tight ends in the Big Ten this year.

BUCK OF THE WEEK

RAY GRIFFIN — SAFETY — Won three and one-half Buckeye leaves for his performance against Penn State. Made THE BIG PLAY against the Nittany Lions when he thwarted a Penn State scoring threat with an interception in the end zone. One of the top safety men in the country; Griffin, a junior, had six tackles against the Nittany Lions. After missing most of the Buckeyes' opener against Michigan State because of a pre-season head injury, Ray is healthy now and headed for All-American recognition.

Jeff Logan Buckeye Tailback

For two years, Jeff Logan has played in the shadow of Archie Griffin. Now Logan is starting to cast his own shadow.

A junior from North Canton Hoover, the 5-10, 182-pound Logan is the Ohio State's leading rusher after two games with 272 yards in 32 carries. That's an average of 8.5 yards an attempt for the OSU tailback who already has three touchdowns to his credit and has had another called back.

Logan has been brilliant in his first two starts, leading the Buckeyes to wins over Michigan State (49-21) and Penn State (12-7) and the No. 2 position in both wire service polls.

In his debut, he singlehandedly destroyed visiting Michigan State, rushing seven times for 112 yards and two touchdowns, scoring a third TD on a 68-yard punt return and completing a 36-yard pass.

For that performance, the 20-year old communications major was selected as the Big Ten, offensive player of the week and was named to both the U.P.I. and the Associated Press Backfields of the Week.

Such a showing is hard, if not impossible, to improve upon. But Logan did just that last week as the Buckeyes bested seventh-ranked Penn State, at University Park, Pa.

Logan was again the catalyst, dodging and darting his way through the stunned Nittany Lions 25 times for 160 yards, including a 48-yard jaunt that set up the first OSU touchdown.

After the game, the Buckeye speedster was voted as player of the game, and a $1,000 scholarship was presented to Ohio State in his name.

Jeff Logan appears to be the latest in a long line of great Ohio State running backs. As one observer noted, it would take a two-time Heisman winner like Archie Griffin to keep Jeff Logan on the bench.

Curtis Brown Tiger Tailback

Curtis Brown, a stocky 5-11, 200-pound senior, is "Mr. Versatility" for the Missouri Tigers. The starting tailback for Coach Al Onofrio's team, Brown combines, power, moves, balance and speed to key the Tigers' running attack. He's also Mizzou's top kick return man and a very capable pass receiver.

With those credentials, it's hard to believe that this is Brown's first year as a starter. But it's true. The low-slung runner, a junior college transfer from St. Charles, Mo., has been used in a reserve role until this year.

But even as a backup, Brown has been effective. Last year, for example, he was the understudy to Missouri standout Tony Galbreath and still wound up as the team's second leading rusher with 636 yards and a 5.6 yard average per carry.

Brown has a way of turning in his best efforts in the Tigers' most important games. A case in point is the 1975 Missouri-Oklahoma game in which he rushed for 153 yards in the second half against the Sooners. Missouri lost a tight 28-27 squeaker, but Brown could take some satisfaction in knowing that he was the first ball carrier in 28 games to dent the Oklahoma defense for over 100 yards.

Brown hasn't shown any signs of letting up this season. Witness the Tigers' shocking 46-25 demolition of Southern Cal (at USC) in which he rushed for 101 yards and two touchdowns and scored a third TD on a 95-yard kick return that literally broke the Trojan's hearts. In that game, the Missouri Comet also hauled in a 49 yard pass reception.

That showing earned Brown a spot in United Press International's Backfield of the Week. Not a bad way to start 1976.

Coming into today's game with Ohio State, Brown leads Missouri in three offensive categories — rushing, scoring and kick returns. He also is third in receiving with three catches for 63 yards.

Curtis Brown is considered one of the top backs in the Big 8. It's easy to see why.

HEAD COACH

WOODY HAYES

Woody Hayes and football have become synonymous during the past three decades. So, too, have Woody Hayes and winning.

Hayes, now in his 26th year at Ohio State, is the fourth winningest coach in college football history with 213 victories in 30 seasons. Only Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner and Bear Bryant have more triumphs than the 63-year old Hayes, who spent three years at Denison and two at Miami (O.) before taking over the Buckeyes in 1951.

Hayes, last year's Coach of the Year when his team won 11 of its 12 starts, has won 180, lost 52 and tied 8 at OSU for a winning percentage of .767. In Big Ten play he owns a 132-33-7 record and has captured 11 conference championships. No other conference school comes close to either figure during the past quarter of a century.

Currently Hayes, who has coached longer in the Big Ten than anyone except Stagg (41-years at Chicago) and Bob Zuppke (29 years at Illinois), is working on a string of four consecutive conference titles and an unprecedented four straight Rose Bowl appearances by the Buckeyes. A Big Ten crown in 1976 would make Ohio State the first team in conference history to win five consecutive championships.

Overall, Hayes, a native of New Philadelphia, O., has taken eight OSU teams to Rose Bowls and produced national championship squads in 1954, 1957 and 1968. His 1969 squad, which posted a 9-1 mark is generally regarded as one of the finest college football teams ever assembled.

Since Woody has coached at Ohio State, the Buckeye school has led the nation in average home game attendance for 21 of the last 25 years and finished second the other four seasons. At the end of 1975, Ohio State owned a string of 44 consecutive home sellouts.

Hayes has spent his entire coaching career within the state of Ohio. After graduating from Denison in 1935, he accepted a position as assistant football coach at Mingo Junction where he remained until being named head coach at New Philadelphia in 1938. He won 19, lost 10 and tied one at New Philly before joining the Navy in 1941.

Following his discharge, Hayes returned to Denison to embark upon a collegiate coaching career. In the time since, he has become one of the most respected and most successful coaches the profession has ever known.

W. W. Hayes

Pfeifer Printing means more than just quality printing. We offer complete art and layout services, typesetting, photographic skills, and, of course, fine printing in black and white and color.

What does this mean to our customers? It means one stop service, no running to an agency for art work, to a studio for pictures, to a typesetter for a couple lines of type. This saves time, which in turn saves money.

As Columbus' oldest commercial printing company, we know our business. Feel free to call one of our competent representatives for advice on your next printing job.

Acting engineering Dean Donald D. Glower Sr.: motivating his students is as important as educating them.

High school teachers attending the college's energy workshop visited the nuclear plant cooling tower at the nuclear power plant near Toledo as part of their studies over the summer. The teachers were enrolled in Ohio State's graduate school and earned course credit by completing an energy-based project related to their teaching specialty, which could later be applied in the classroom.

OSU's College of Engineering: Training students to meet human needs

Over the past quarter-century, virtually all Ohio State engineering graduates — 98 per cent of them — have gone into jobs of their choice in that field. Last June, graduates' starting salaries averaged $14,000.

These employment figures are only one measure of how the University, through its College of Engineering, successfully meets human needs in a complex and industrialized world.

Today's engineering and architecture graduates are products of programs that have goals extending well beyond the mastery of the fundamental sciences and the technical knowledge of an engineering specialty. Ohio State students learn also the techniques of problem-solving, including consideration of human as well as scientific factors, an appreciation of our cultural and social heritage, and the concept of education as a lifelong process.

Acting engineering Dean Donald D. Glower Sr. says, "Our objective is not only to educate our students, but also to motivate them to contribute to our technological society."

One new development through which the college helps to achieve this motivation is its Cooperative Education Program. It began a year ago with a dozen students, and this year enrolls about 60. Under this program, a mechanical engineering student earns both credit and pay, alternating between study on the campus and work with one of 47 employers. When the student finishes in four years, s/he will have valuable engineering experience to go with the degree earned.

Continuing education for adult teachers, and indirectly aiding their pre-college students, was the aim of an energy workshop the college sponsored last summer. In cooperation with the College of Education, engineering faculty taught the basics of Ohio's energy situation to 27 high school teachers from around the state. The 17-day course took the teachers from eastern Ohio stripmines to nuclear energy installations on Lake Erie, providing them with fresh ideas to take back to the classroom.

Engineering research continues as an important activity of the college. Last year such projects totaled more than $7.5 million. Studies ranging from computer translation of languages to reduction of wet-weather skidding accidents provided research experiences for 382 graduate students and 270 undergraduates.

This fall, Ohio State students studying engineering and architecture number 4,000. Among these are 160 minority students and 350 women. A faculty of 350 in 17 departments teaches programs leading to bachelor's degrees in 15 engineering fields.

HARLEY HONORED

A special ceremony was held this morning at the site of old Ohio Field to honor the exploits of the late, legendary Charles "Chic" Harley, Ohio State's first three-time football All-American.

On hand for the occasion were members of the classes of 1916-'17 and '19 who were teammates of Harley, as well as members of the Harley family and representatives of the Ohio State University and its Athletic Department.

The birth of Ohio State football began with the exploits of Harley and his accomplishments rank him as one of the great college football players of all-time.

He and his teammates deserve special remembrance today as they gather for their annual class reunion. Without them, Ohio Stadium might never have been possible.

The cooling system in your car is something that merits your attention. Simple preventive maintenance practices and the use of clean 50-50 solutions of ethylene glycol coolant solutions both winter and summer will keep your car running as it should, with fewer repairs and replacements being required, for many, many thousands of extra, trouble-free miles.

Check your car's cooling system this way:

Before the engine is started in the morning and while it is cold, remove the radiator cap and look at the coolant in the radiator. Note the level at which you find it.

If it is low, there is probably a leak in the cooling system somewhere.

If you still have last winter's antifreeze solution in the radiator, look at it carefully. Is it clean? If it is, you may leave it alone until fall's pre-winter servicing.

If, however, the coolant is dirty, contains rust and visible impurities, do drain the entire cooling system and flush it with a cooling system cleanser.

Drain and flush out thoroughly any cleanser used prior to refilling the system with the 50 - 50 mixture of coolant that you have pre-mixed before pouring into the radiator. (If you have any left over after topping off the radiator, keep it in storage in a sealed container for future make-up of coolant.)

Before filling the radiator with the coolant, check for faulty hoses by squeezing them and look for signs of checking, flaking, breaks, cracks, undue softness or brittleness.

Replace all faulty hoses.

George Hill—Defense Coordinator

COACH'S PROFILE

George Hill has been defensive coordinator at Ohio State since he joined the Buckeye staff in 1971. Additionally, he coaches the linebackers.

In his five years at Ohio State, Hill has become recognized as one of the foremost defensive strategists in college football. Under Hill, the Ohio State defense annually ranks among the best in the nation. In the past three years, the Buckeye defense has yielded 8.5 points per game in 1975, 10.7 in 1974, and in 1973, the opposition was limited to a mere 5.8 points per game.

Five of Hill's Ohio State linebackers have been drafted into professional football, including all three starters on the '73 team. Two of these, Rick Middleton and Randy Gradishar, were first round selections.

Hill is a native of Bay Village, Ohio. He attended Denison University, where he lettered twice as a fullback and two times as a tackle.

He graduated from Denison in 1958 and went to Bowling Green the following year for a master's degree.

His first coaching job was in 1959 as line coach at Findlay College. One year at Findlay, five at Denison, one year at Cornell and five at Duke provided Hill with excellent coaching credentials prior to joining Ohio State in February, 1971.

George and his wife, Cloyde, have two children, son Greg and daughter Tammy.

THAT'S RIGHT . . . WE'RE THE FLAG-WAVERS!

. . . There are all kinds of flag-wavers in this world who wave flags for all sorts of reasons. The Ohio State University Alumni Association, the official organization of graduates and former students of The Ohio State University, has a membership of some 72,000 strong. We stand behind and support the Scarlet and Gray. You can, too, in many different ways. One way, visible to many, is to display a Buckeye Flag.

Each flag measures 3' x 5', a gray block "O" on each side sets on a scarlet field, grommet holes on one end permit easy attaching, and the durable nylon and tackle-twill material means it will be flying long after the game with that "other team."

For each flag, alumni association members should send $12.00. For non-members cost is $15.00. Shipping and tax are included in the above prices. Checks should be made payable to: Ohio State Alumni Association. Send your order to: Ohio State Alumni Association, Alumni House, 2400 Olentangy River Road, Columbus, Ohio, 43210.

'ZARK' HEADS MIZZOU ATTACK

When Steve Pisarkiewicz was recruited at Mizzou, the Tigers were running a Wishbone offense.

The young quarterback was not too enthralled with presiding over a running attack — but was assured that Ol' Mizzou would be switching to an "I" attack the next season. That was all the reassurance Pisarkiewicz needed.

Billed as one of the top throwing quarterbacks in the country, the rangy St. Louisan senior is Coach Al Onofrio's meal ticket in 1976. He'll team with tailback Curtis Brown — and a batch of four quality receivers — to give the Tigers an explosive offense.

Zark, as his teammates know him, led the Big Eight passers last season with 1792 aerial yards, and 11 touchdowns. Sometime this season, he will overtake Paul Christman's career mark of 3068 passing yards at Missouri.

The Tiger field boss is a confident, enthusiastic leader — as his team lines up for the huddle — clapping his hands rhythmically and chirping "Here We Go — Here We Go", or "Listen Up — Listen Up", before calling the play.

He never fails to compliment a teammate for a good block, or a big play. He's a cheerleader in cleats.

After a red-shirt sophomore year, Zark broke into the 1974 lineup as a starter in the sixth game against Oklahoma State. The previous Saturday at Lincoln, he entered the game late in the third quarter, with the Tigers trailing Nebraska, 10-0, and teamed with Tony Galbreath to spark a three-touchdown burst in the final period and a 21-10 upset.

Last year the Tigers' squint-eyed quarterback orchestrated Missouri's season-opening upset of Alabama at Birmingham — and had his best single-game performance against Oklahoma State.

In that game, the Polish Rifle connected on 21-of-27 tosses for 371 yards — and had no interceptions. This effort erased a 24-year-old record of 365 passing yards set by Tony Scardino against Oklahoma.

Zark's favorite target of a year ago — all-America Henry Marshall — is now playing for the Kansas City Chiefs, but now Missouri's quarterback has four topflight receivers.

"I really think we're better off than a year ago," Zark says, "because everyone knew we favored Marshall, when we had to have it. Now we have four guys who catch the ball equally well."

Zark's prime pass catchers are wide receivers Lamont Downer and Leo Lewis, slotback Joe Stewart and tight end Kellen Winslow. One other possibility could be either of two freshmen — slotback-tailback David Newman or tight end Gillis Leonard, who at this point have yet to earn their spurs.

If seniors Pisarkiewicz and Brown enjoy an injury-free year, the Missourians figure to exploit a few enemy defenses. Each can enhance the other's effectiveness.

The flowering of Stewart, a 9.5 sprinter, last spring — both as a long-ball receiver and as a runner — also adds another dimension to Coach Al Onofrio's attack.

But Ol' Mizzou likely will meet the challenge of a rugged schedule . . . six of the Tigers' foes were in the UPI's pre-season top 20 . . . or fail the test, depending on how well Zark slings the football this autumn.

The gifted golden-arm has all the tools to be one of the nation's best in 1976.

College Football's Trivia Trove

by ROD BELCHER

This Rose Bowl game, considered a classic in the event's long history, helped launch one participant on a long movie career. See question 10.

Hearing themselves described as trivia experts is enough to make most average-to-competent trivia players wince. Or worse.

Sure, it's a rather pleasant pastime, trading questions with another nostalgia-trivia freak. But to get tabbed as a superior player can bring on a few woes.

Like, "Hey, I got one for ya, ol' buddy," with a frequency that does become wearing. Or expecting complete accuracy with never an allowance for even a slightly-faulty reply. Or of having to deal with answers born out of misguided legend rather than fact.

As a for instance, one poser that crops up periodically among football trivialists is: "Who's the only athlete to do both of these—catch a touchdown pass from Y. A. Tittle and hit a home run off Sandy Koufax?"

The proffered answer to this zinger is Alvin Dark. And indeed, Dark did play at the same college as Tittle (LSU) and did manage a homer or two off Koufax. Only trouble is, the Tittle-Dark TD pass is a mere phantom. They played for the Tigers in different years.

It is fervently hoped that the quick trivia quiz on college football which follows avoids the taint of small inaccuracies and, especially, of dead-wrongisms.

Too, the wish is that the group of questions on footballers as film actors will be forgiven for its focus on the fairly ancient. Try a safety-blitz against these:

(1) Who was the last (meaning the most recent) single-wing tailback to be named to most of the major all-

America teams?

(2) Who was the immediate successor to Bud Wilkinson when he finally stepped down after all those highly successful years as head coach at Oklahoma?

(3) What did these football figures have in common?—Doc Spears, one-time head coach at Wisconsin, Minnesota and Oregon; Ace Parker, Duke all-America tailback and later a major league baseball player; Nibs Price, head coach at California when Roy Riegels did his wrong-way thing in the 1929 Rose Bowl game; Biggie Munn, star player at Minnesota, then coach and athletic director at Michigan State.

(4) Identify this outstanding player from these clues: His senior year (1955) was a disaster, as his team had an 0-10 record and he was hurt much of the season. Still, he made the academic all-America squad and would up being drafted into pro football on the say-so of the basketball coach at his school—a move for which his pro coaches and teammates were everlasting grateful.

(5) Three brothers, all tackles, made all-America teams as University of Michigan players in 1933, 1942 and 1947. If you get their last name—good. First names—superior!

(6) Notre Dame has developed many standout quarterbacks with easily-recalled names, such as Johnny Lujack in 1947. But some fans tend to forget the man who succeeded Lujack and directed the offense of the great Irish teams of 1948-49, which produced the likes of Leon Hart, Jungle Jim Martin, Emil Sitko and Bill Wightkin among others. Who was this excellent quarterback?

(7) Now for that series of movie questions. Identify the legendary college football hero who tried his hand as a Hollywood actor, appearing in two feature-length silent films, "One Minute to Fly," and "Racing Romeo."

(8) Old movie trivia buffs are familiar with the names of performers Frank Albertson and Cecilia Parker. But who was the football Hall of Famer who co-starred with them in a 1932 movie serial called "The Lost Special?"

(9) Still another fabled football star tried the Hollywood serial route. He starred in "King of the Texas Rangers," made in 1941. Who?

(10) A Rose Bowl appearance led to a long film career for this dashing athlete-actor. One of his early roles was playing opposite Joan Crawford in a movie often described as a classic of its genre, "Our Dancing Daughters." Who was he?

ANSWERS:

(1) John Majors, in 1956. Terry Baker of Oregon State was a single-winger as a sophomore, but in his all-America senior year, he had been switched to a T-quarterback. That was in 1962. (2) Gomer Jones who headed the Sooners in 1964-65. (3) Their real first name was Clarence. (4) Bart Starr of Alabama. The basketball coach was Johnny Dee. (5) Francis (Whitey) Wister, 1933; Alvin, 42; Albert, 47. (6) Bob Williams. (7) Red Grange of Illinois. (8) Ernie Nevers of Stanford. (9) Sammy Baugh of Texas Christian. (10) Johnny Mack Brown of Alabama (Rose Bowl of Jan. 1, 1926).

Teaching Excellence: A Buckeye Tradition

Ohio State's Big Eight

The University's $1,000 Alumni Awards for Distinguished Teaching, sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Development Fund, recognize and give evidence of the importance placed on superior teaching at Ohio State and provide encouragement and incentive for teaching achievement. A committee of four students, five faculty members and one alumna selected this year's eight winners based on student, faculty and alumni nominations. Two of the University's 1976 Distinguished Teachers are profiled here.

G. Adolph Ackerman

G. Adolph Ackerman, professor of anatomy, says his secret to successful teaching is working closely with students and expecting only their best.

"I expect the most they can give and hope they'll strive to do even more," he says. "I use the same criteria for myself."

Although he teaches advanced graduate courses in blood, histochemistry and cellular biology, Dr. Ackerman also loves research. He currently is studying the chemistry of the cell surface.

"Research should be an integral part of teaching," he stresses. "The two go together and bring an inquisitiveness to both learning and teaching."

Dr. Ackerman says he spends so much time with his students they have become almost like a family.

"The most rewarding part of teaching is watching those graduate students develop into mature, inquisitive individuals with the ability to tackle and solve problems," he says.

Dr. Ackerman readily admits to working his students hard. He requires the graduate students to use the library and the laboratory extensively and to keep up with the latest scientific literature.

He grades the graduate students mostly on oral examinations and presentations and the medical students on laboratory practicals and written examinations.

"Teachers should bring out the best in students," he says, "allowing them to develop to their full potentials. And of course, they should mold students into critical observers and thinkers."

Dr. Ackerman holds four degrees from Ohio State: B.A., 1948; M.S., 1949; and M.D. and Ph.D. in anatomy, 1954. In 1961, he received the Lederle Medical Faculty Award. The author of two textbooks, he joined the faculty in 1957.

Ralph W. Swain

"For me, teaching and doing a good job at it is a real pleasure," says Ralph W. Swain, assistant professor in industrial and systems engineering.

Since coming to Ohio State in 1971, Swain's teaching formula has been to give the students the right environment to do their best work.

"The key is remembering that these are very capable people. It's up to the teacher to give students the confidence that they can handle the work, because 98 per cent of them are able to do it or they wouldn't be in these courses," he says.

"Half the non-engineering students are terrorized at dealing with quantitative methods, and they need me to give them confidence. It's fun to watch people who find that they can do math after all."

Swain adds that, "Students are very dependent on you for materials, and very little of this material can be found in textbooks. One year I made up a set of notes and passed them out to my students. In that way, they didn't have to busy themselves writing notes during class — they could concentrate on keeping up with the discussion.

"I like to think I have a pretty good sense of humor and we don't take ourselves too seriously in class," he added. "There's a lot of bantering and that makes it fun. I enjoy that, and they do too. I made up as many little games as I could for students without an engineering background."

Swain is leaving Ohio State this fall to become associate director of the University of Florida's Health Services Research Division. It will involve much less teaching, perhaps one course a quarter, he says, but adds, "I think I'll end up treasuring what I've done in teaching."

Swain received his bachelor of engineering science degree in 1967 from Johns Hopkins University and his M.S. in 1969 and Ph.D. in 1971 from Cornell University. He joined the Ohio State faculty in 1971.

SHOULD FRESHMEN PLAY? STILL NO AGREEMENT!

How do the country's Division I football coaches feel about the 1972 freshmen-eligible rule, four years later?

It has a lot of support for a variety of reasons, but a strong minority is either definitely opposed to the rule, or has some reservations. These are the mixed results of a survey by NCAA Statistics Service:

Of the 137 major-college coaches, 52 were in favor of the freshmen rule, 41 were either definitely opposed or had some reservations (including the eight Ivy League colleges who still bar freshmen) and the other 44 made no comment.

Questionnaires were sent to all Division I sports information directors, asking for comments pro or con from coaches and/or players. Most of the coaches in favor of the freshmen-eligible rule and most of the small number of players who commented said any player who is good enough to play with the varsity his first year should have that chance. Some need time to adjust to college academics, they said, but others can do it with no major problems.

Many coaches cited the current scholarship limitations as a major factor making freshmen necessary for squad depth; some said they were vital to rebuild their team to a competitive level. Several said academic adjustment isn't a problem. For instance, Boston College coach Joe Yukica said, "We haven't noticed any difficulty with freshmen adjusting to college academic work or college life in general."

On the other hand, Illinois coach Bob Blackman said, "We feel it is simply not fair to a youngster to put pressure on him before he has entered school by expecting too much too soon. We encourage them but never pressure them." Other comments:

COACHES OPPOSED

Joe Paterno, Penn State—"The freshman rule has become an important part of just about everybody's program and it is obvious that freshmen can compete successfully on the varsity level, but I still have some philosophical reservations about the wisdom of the rule. The freshman year should be one of adjustment academically, socially and in other ways without having the pressure to perform."

Al Onofrio, Missouri—"There is no question about the ability of freshmen to compete on the varsity level, especially at the skilled positions; however, I think this competition does subject the young athlete to a lot of pressure that not everyone can handle. I frankly think that freshmen should be brought along in a healthy way — normal progression — letting them prove themselves in competition with their peers (in scrimmage situations). They shouldn't be put in the position where they are competing for a varsity position on the first day of practice . . . I think this hurts them, and affects your varsity squad in a negative way."

Darrell Royal, Texas—"I was in complete accord with the freshman program as it used to be. But now since the head count has been placed at 95 it is imperative that we use freshmen."

Bo Rein, N. C. State—"For the freshman who plays it's a good thing. But for those you don't, it's a difficult adjustment. They come expecting to play, and if they don't it affects them — both their performance on the field and in the classroom. I'm not sure the rule is a good thing for football."

Jack Christiansen, Stanford—"I don't feel that more than 20 per cent of freshmen are ready to play varsity ball. If you don't have a junior varsity or freshman program, they get little competition their first season. As far as development and competition, it would be better to have junior varsity and freshman programs." (Note: Stanford does have a junior varsity team which plays five games a season.)

Chuck Mills, Wake Forest—"It has definitely helped us. But for their welfare, I still wish they were not eligible. It's too big an adjustment and a lot of pressure. Except for a few skilled kids, it's also tough to evaluate freshmen as players. I just think the adjustments are too much for a kid's first year in college."

Roy Kramer, Central Michigan—"It's over-used in recruiting. It's a rarity when a freshman starts and yet a lot of recruits are told they can be starters as freshmen."

Ben Martin, Air Force—"Basically, I'm against it . . . I think it's really a big jump to go from high school to playing in the big stadia against the big teams. At Air Force, we haven't been able to take full advantage of the potential of freshmen players. Our young guys are in basic training for seven weeks in the summer and in a class system at the academy. It makes it difficult for us to assimilate his skills as readily as others might . . . I think some of the strong teams have gotten stronger."

COACHES FOR

John Pont, Northwestern—"The established programs do not benefit much from the freshman rule. It's the up-and-coming ones like Northwestern's that gain the most."

Charles McClendon, LSU—"With the limitation of 30 players on scholarship each year, it means that more and more will have the opportunity to play as freshmen. Every squad will have fewer players which means more opportunity."

Doug Barfield, Auburn—"At first most coaches didn't believe freshmen could come right in and help. I was one of those. This fall I started every signee on the varsity with the first practice. We had one practice with the varsity and freshmen together, one for varsity only and one for freshmen only . . ."

Bill Mallory, Colorado—"It has helped us. With just 30 scholarships, some of the frosh have to make immediate contributions, and four or five did here last season."

Mike White, California—"It's a great rule. It helps you make recruiting decisions and it helps your team if he's ready to play."

THE PLAYERS

Ken Novak, Purdue (on travel squad '72, started '73-4-5, defensive tackle)—"The rule is a good one because guys like Archie Griffin proved they can play . . . With the extra experience a guy now has as a freshman, it helps the quality of the game and gives fans better football. I encountered no problems academically or otherwise with the rule."

Steve Niehaus, Notre Dame (defensive tackle, four-year starter 1972-75)—"It has its good points and its bad points. Freshmen get used to the system after about a month. I know I was lost at first like all the other freshmen. Things went too fast. Freshmen aren't naturally geared to playing varsity ball, not even in high school. I had trouble the first couple of games I played at Notre Dame. But after several weeks you can really notice a change by playing against and practicing with the varsity. It really helped me become a better football player a little quicker."

Dave Buckey, N. C. State (quarterback, played in '72, started '73-4-5)—"People talk about adjustment to college life . . . but I feel the high school to college adjustment is easier than the adjustment made going into high school because the person is more mature and experienced when he goes to college. This shouldn't be a reason to deny eligibility to those who are capable of helping their college team right away."

Don Buckey, N. C. State (wide receiver, Dave's twin brother)—"Freshmen are accepted by the older players readily now, but it wasn't that way the first year or two. The big adjustment is the amount of time football consumes, but there wasn't a really big difference for me from high school to college ball." (Don also was a 3-year starter.)

Dan O'Rourke, Colorado State (starter last two years at wide receiver)—"I think it is obvious the rule has been good for college football. It was difficult for me at first (in 1972) — a lot of studying is necessary — but if you discipline yourself and get used to it, things aren't as rough as if you were unorganized."

Ken MacAfee, Notre Dame (junior tight end)—" . . . I guess it comes down to ability, maturity and adaptability. As a freshman you have to make a lot of adjustments — socially, academically and athletically. But just knowing that if you do well you have a chance to play can be a very motivating factor in making the adjustments. At Notre Dame your academic progress as a freshman is watched closely, so if football seems to interfere with academics you're given time to make the adjustment. But we have very few problems with freshmen making the transition. To be an athlete in the first place prepares you to handle pressure and to compete."

Courtney Snyder, Indiana (senior halfback)—"I moved into the starting lineup during my freshman year. It was a shock in a lot of ways, the defenses were so strong and so good. Near the end of that season I was feeling more at home and adjusting."

Fight that team across the field,
 Show them Ohio's here,
 Set the earth reverberating with a

 Never let that team get the ball,
 Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,

 The seasons pass, the years will roll;
 Time and change will surely show
 How firm thy friendship O-hi-o.

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION:

A helping hand for Ohio's farmers

Madison County farmer Robert Sommers says it would be pretty hard for him or anybody else to run a dairy operation without help from Ohio Cooperative Extension, the network of educational and support services provided by Ohio State University with federal, state and county funds.

Each month, Ohio State tests the 42 Guernseys Sommers milks from his prize herd of 100 on the 524-acre Cogniac Farm just east of London. The test determines the milk's butterfat content, predicts how much milk each cow will give in the coming month and indicates the farmer's dollar return on his feed ratio, Sommers said.

One day last summer, Sommers talked with agricultural extension agent Elmer Olsen about turning a drought-hampered grass field into a demonstration plot. And three years ago when the Xenia tornado roared up Highway 42 and took one of Sommers' barns with it, Olsen was there to discuss putting up a new building.

Sommers recently completed a three-year term as president of the county's extension advisory committee. His wife, Elizabeth, who keeps books for the farm which has been in her family almost 100 years, has attended extension-sponsored workshops on tax preparation and property transfer.

Their daughter Jane is a recent high school graduate active in 4-H, another extension program.

Elmer Olsen not only helps Bob Sommers, he also keeps in touch with most of the 900 other farmers in Madison County. And he is just one of the more than 400 agriculture, home economics, 4-H and community and natural resources extension agents, specialists and administrators who bring cooperative extension into each of Ohio's 88 counties.

Dairy farmer Robert Sommers, left, confers with agricultural extension agent Elmer Olsen, an assistant professor with the cooperative extension service, on Sommers' 524-acre Cogniac Farm in Madison County. Olsen, as a resident of London, can keep in close touch with the area he serves as he helps the 900 Madison County farmers make the most of what their farms can produce.

Outlook Bright For Buckeye Harriers

Coach Jim McDonough

Ohio State cross country coach Jim McDonough unveiled his 1976 squad this morning against visiting West Virginia. And the way McDonough sees it, the meeting with the Mountaineers should be the beginning of a very successful season for the Buckeyes.

"I am very enthusiastic about this team," admits the second year OSU coach. "I think we have the potential to have a winning season, finish in the first division of the Big Ten and even qualify for the nationals."

What McDonough, who is also an assistant track mentor for the Buckeyes, likes most about his harriers is their solid depth.

"We appear to have nine or ten who will challenge for the top five spots and that is good depth."

It's not just run of the mill talent either according to McDonough.

"These are good athletes that we are talking about," he says. "They could make just about anybody's team."

The Buckeyes have seven lettermen returning from last year, headed by three-time track All-American Tom Byers, a senior, and sophomore John Glidewell, fourth at last year's Big Ten meet. Both will merit All-American consideration this fall and either is capable of winning the Big Ten.

Other top returnees are seniors Ernie Watts and Joe Hurd, juniors Bob Nelson and Howard Wingert and sophomore Bill Gallagher.

"We also will get help from John Mansoor, a junior who has been hurt much of his first two years," points out McDonough.

McDonough can't contain his glee when talking about his freshman crop, especially Canadian Paul Roberts and Australian Steve Crane, both of whom rate as very definite Olympic candidates for their respective countries.

"They will be the key," he says. "If they perform the way we anticipate, the goals that I mentioned earlier are well within reach."

The Schedule: Sept. 25 West Virginia, Oct. 2 Tennessee, Miami, Kent State, Oct. 9 At Michigan State, Oct. 16 At All Ohio, Oct. 23 Pittsburgh, Kentucky, Cincinnati, Oct. 30 At Central Collegiate Championships, Nov. 6 At Big Ten Championships, Nov. 13 At District IV Qualifier, Nov. 22 At N.C.A.A. Championships.
